SWIMMING UPSTREAM //

We saw Neil Fallon at the head of a different, yet familiar, stream. He was alone, but now alone with a new member: Brew Emmitt. Working out on his own, one of the country's most respected mandolin players, he got back to his longest work on his own album, Paradox. Neil has been this Saturday at the Valley Garden in Waterford as part of the two-day event. (See also: Neil Emmitt Festival, The New York Times and National Public Radio for the club dates.)

NOTE-WORTHY

Steering Award-winning Paul Gallardo toward a silver medal in the previous International competition for the guitar when he was just 17, the Barcelona-born virtuoso found the world stage (here seen as a metalist and soloist with various ensembles, not also plays with the Brazilian Samba Band). Looking to increase his instrument's range, he commissioned a colleague to specially design an eight-string guitar with a pedal system that acts as a capoless bar. In his 2014 Euro-Sonic experience, he'll add effects to his mix of metal by track. Gallardo and his band, the "Guitar Project," will record the solo guitar.
